* DAILY MAGAZINE PAGES FOR EVERYBODY*

City Folk and Their Country Cousins Very Close Fitting So You

ROF. THOMAS D. WOOD, of Celumbia University, has been investigating the children-he and his committee. They've studied the children from Idaho, from Massachusetts, from Pennsylvania, from New Jersey, and from Virginia. They've been peering into throats and tapping chests, and measuring arms, nd weighing bodies, and fussing over the eyesight and fuming over the teeth. They've made histories of diseases and taken notes-and looked into records-and what Prof. Thomas D. Wood of Columbia University and his committee do not know about the American child, physically speaking, doesn't seem to be worth knowing.

And the thing that stands out at the very head and front of the report of that committee is-that the country child is below normal and defective, need of medical attention-in amazing percentage. The city child is better nourished, better watched, better taken care of, and better protected than the country child, says the report of the committee-and everybody is saying, "Well, did you ever?" and "Who'd ever think it?" at a great rate.

It does seem a little surprising-before you get to thinking of it-but it really isn't, after all. The rude health that is supposed to flourish in the country districts is just one of those things that ought to be true-and lsn't. Do yeu remember the first summer you spent in the country-not in the mountains or at the seashore-but in the real country? You couldn't find a were "too hard to climb," and the meadows were "way off yonder." And when you went to spend the afternoon with the daughters of a neighboring farmer you walked to their door through an orchard thick with perfume, and green with growing beauty-and found them sitting in a stuffy room making crocheted lace that never looked like anything except appropriate trimming for a wash-rag soul to go for a walk with you-the woods were "too far," and the hills

Health Shut Outside.

And they never even invited you into the orchard, though you hinted and hinted-and there wasn't a flower in the house, or a branch of green, and all the doors were shut and every window was down. Mother was in the kitchen frying doughnuts, and sister was in the dining room sewing carnet rans, and auntie was there painting china-perfect ladies, every one of them. They were absolutely struck dumb with horror at the very idea of traipsing out in the sun and getting all sunburned.

It's quite sane and sensible for her to shut herself in a stuTy-house and have the headache. It's eminently proper for her to stew over a hot stove, and make so much jelly that nobody knows where on earth to put it. It's quite the thing for her to tear rags into strips, and sew them together again, just to be doing .- but to walk for pleasure, or to ride for fun, or to drive for the air-why, the very idea

That's the sort of place that the country child comes from. The child who sleeps in a room with the windows tight shut and locked, from one year's end to the other. The child who eats fat pork, saleratus biscuit and sorghum molasses three times a day. The child who has a cough and is kind of peaked for months before any one thinks of sending for a doctor and finding out whether it is tuberculosis that makes him cough or not. Go into any country school and you'll find half a dozen children who are called by the teacher "sort o' queer."

I asked a country school teacher about two of her boys just last sum-

"Oh," she said. "Dan's an odd stick-always was, an always will be. I never bother him much about lessons. And Mary-why, Mary's two sisters were in my room last year, and they were both queer, the same as

And nobody with half an eye could look at poor Dan without seeing that he could hardly breathe on account of adenoids-and that little Mary was slightly deaf, and a bit near-sighted-and there was nothing else in the world the matter with the poor child. If either of these children had been in a city school they would have been examined and treated-and cured, as a matter of course,

How can country children be healthy, when they are born of country mothers and fathers?

Did you ever see a woman past thirty in the country who didn't look every day of her age, and ten years more at that? Did you ever know an average farmer of forty who didn't look sixty and act it? Why, they begin to talk about getting along in years when they turn the corner at

What's to Be Done?

And, then, the moral surroundings. I don't see why a boy is any better off hobnobbing with some wandering tramp of a hired man in the barn Sunday afternoon than he would be joining some boys' club in a neighborhood

The city does take the character and the individuality out of a childhere's no question in the world of that. Every big man and every big woman in America was born or brought up in the country-but big men and big women are the exception. What are we going to do about this rule?

Of course, when you take care of people all the time, they may not be quite so able to take care of themselves some time, but, on the whole, is there anything so very astonishing about the report which Prof. Wood and his assistants have made? I wish I could be surprised at it-but somehow I'm afraid I'm not I was born and brought up in the country myself, and I've seen every member of a family down with typhoid fever, and not a soul in the village trying to find out whether the water that those people drank was contami-I've seen a whole school full of children drinking water which came from a well at the edge of an old-fashioned country graveyard, and there was great talk of the dispensations of Providence whenever one of the chiliren who drank that poisoned water sickened and died. City people are accustomed to meddlers. We're used to the gas man and the garbage man, the water man and the electric light man, the board of health and the board of education-and we're thankful to the person who calls us up over the phone and tells, us that there's a defective sewer in our premises, and that we must attend to it at once-or pay the penalty. You call up a farmer and tell him that the water from his well is danserous because it drains from a manure pile, and he'll tell you to mind your usiness. And you'll have to mind it-or get into trouble, You've pointed out an interesting state of things, Dr. Wood. Now, then, what are we going to do about it?

Copyright, Newspaper Feature Service.

Do tell us in good, plain English-so that we can all understand.

Advice to Girls

winter had a sweetheart who came about four or nights of each week to see me. He kep! this up for about two months, then he got so he didn't come but about three times a week. He was very jealous. So one Sunday while he was out of town I went down to a cafe with another boy friend of n.inc. A few remarks were made about him being se jealous and afraid for me to walk down the street with another boy. Now it so happened that an old girl of his who had just returned to the city heard these remarks and went and told him every word.

When he came back he didn't come to see me any more, but, in-stead, went to call upon this girl. Everyone said that he would kee-company with her when she came back, for they had gone together for so long. He told me that he never wrote to her this winter (which he did) in order to keep me from being have left that town new and I I have left that town new and I don't know whether to write to him or not. I think a great deal of him and I know he did of me at one time. I thought that maybe if I did write to him he might show it to this girl. What would you do if you were me?

ANXIOUS.

yELL, that's what happens To begin with, you were columns. They should be to let any man take five her, care this office.

evenings of your week-unless you were really engaged to him. No wonder he it and get Mary a diamond—a solitaire, began to arrive a little less often.

wrong. And for all 1 love to keep up wrong wrong wrong. And for all 1 love to keep up two girls can do is to get rid of that young man just as fast as you can. He's made a fool of both of yo—and undoubtedly there's a third dear little goose believing every word he says to her right now. Don't be so easily fooled by sweet words next time.

We were to be married in June, when Miss Laurie will welcome letters of when you talk too much and too loud at the same time.

To begin with, you were columns. They should be addressed to suit, don't ask the saleswoman for a bathing suit. The latter is only arst cousin to the former. Annette Kellermann says every woman ought to swim. She also says that women can't swim if they are all "dolled up" in corsets and fluffy. ruffly suits, which incorporate all the style features of an afternoon

THE LATEST SWIMMING SUIT

One of the new suits is shown here. It is of silk and wool mixture, knitted like a fine sweater. The color is the new shade of green. There are knickers and a garment which is half sweater and half jersey, which fits the figure closely, extends down on the hips, and is held at the waist belt.

It is really a very smart and becoming affair. Lest it appear somewhat shocking to conservative women, there is a skirt, either of the same knitted fabric, which is like the jersey-topped petticoats, or of waterproof satin in the same color. This fastens with snaps, and may be shed as the swimmer leaves the beach for the water and donned again as she comes out of the ocean.

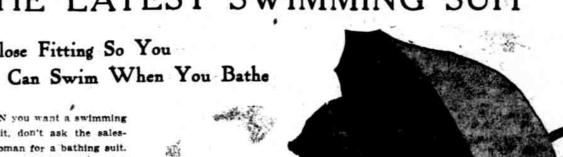

The little cap is of rubberized satin. trimmed with rubber fruit. The parasol matches the suit in color and has a long white handle.

The newest bathing wrap is a fascinating pointed cape of thinnest, most supple gray rubber, cut long in front and back, reaching below the skirt of the suit and being shorter at the sides, so it just reaches the bend of

It is trimmed all about the neck, down the front, and over the sides with a garland of tiny rubber roses and leaves.

The majority of the bathing suits are in somber colors, black or blue. There may be a bright splash of color in the trimming or the cap, but the fashionable bathing suits are not in rainbow shades.

Stockings and sandals give the opportunity for contrast, but I am told the best-dressed women wear the stockings with white sandals.

Peter's Adventures in Matrimony

By LEONA DALRYMPLE

"Diane of the Green Van," awarded a prize of $10,000 by Ida M. Tarbell and S. S. McClure as judges.

"MARY, SEE THE MOON?"

wondering if you'd mind if-if-I wear began to arrive a little less often.

Sugar is very sweet, you know, and so is candy. But just think of living on them for three meals a day. Nothing precious ever comes so easily—and nothing that is so easy to get every stays ing the state of the spring violets by the walk. It hurt me that my first deliberate lie to mother must come through Mary, but I swallowed my hurt bravely and retained and so much? So he was writing to her all the time—while he was making such desperate love to you.

Well, now, the best thing both of you with the times, still there are many I swallowed my burt bravely and re- have not seen.

goose believing every word he says to her right now. Don't be so vatily fooled by sweet words next time.

These easy love-makers have always had a great deal of experience. That's how it comes so easy.

Copyright. Newspaper Feature Service.

Copyright. Newspaper Feature Service.

The copyright of the third she knew and feared for me as she looked ahead.

We were to be married in June, when the roses bloomed. And Mary was 'o have a rose wedding. It's odd how all along it seemed to me that it was Mary's wedding and not mine. And as the summer came this feeling grew. Yery soon I began to realize acutely that a fashionable wedding inevitably controlled.

SHOWERS.

III.

ND Mary liked the ring.

Peter?" asked mother.

I looked up into mother's kind gray eyes and bit my lip. "Well, mother," I lied bravely. "to tell you the truth, it does seem a bit old-fashioned for her. I've been bit old-fashioned for her. I've been litself about something windering if you'd mind if—If—I wear litself about something which to me at last I hand have given us a little runabout for a weeding gift."

Showers; there were notes to be written about presents, and there were involved wedding puzzles in silver to be a linen shower and a kitchen shower, a handkerchief shower and the dear Lord only knows what other kind of shower and I've scarcely seen you for a week. Tomorrow, Mary, we're going motoring all day. Dad and mother have given us a little runabout for a little runabout for a little runabout something which to me at wedding gift."

Somehow, looking up into mother's bachelor days to hold a fune eyes, I felt that she knew and feared them." I responded promptly. "Oh, Peter!" Mary pouted, "how car you say such things? Everybody does! "Everybody does what" I asked. purposely teasing her about her femi> nine inaccuracies of speech. "Why," she said without a glimme and pale that I fumed inwardly at all the ridiculous fuss and frivol weaving itself about something which to me at least seemed too intimately sacred for all such ridiculous publicity.

CASTORIA

But Mary liked it; that was evident. And I was surprised and a little disappointed. For the wedding was no longer a sacred ceremony to bind me to Mary; it was a dread blare of trumpets and trumpery, revealing to me much in Mary that I would rather have not seen.

HIS ILLUSIONS FADING.

IV

ETER." said Mary one night in June, "you must have a bachelor dinner, you know; everybody does."

"I'm not sorry enough at leaving bachelor days to hold a funeral over them," I responded promptly.

"Oh. Peter," she said, "have you forgotten? Tomorrow I give a luncheon to my bridesmaids. And, besides, mother says I must not be seen out for the next week or so. She doesn't like to see a bride so—so bold."

Istared And then I groaned.

"Great Scott!" I exclaimed, "do you know that I'm taking a week of vacation before the wedding purposely to be with you? Am I not of more importance than the dressmaker and the fool girls who are eternally gushing over you? I'll be glad when all this silly frivoling is over and we settle down to life again."

I was angry, and showed it, and instantly I discovered that there was still another kind of shower which might disturb the serenity of my prenuptial days, Mary burst into tears. "Oh," she sobbed, "I don't see how might disturb the serenity of my prenuptial days. Mary burst into tears.
"Oh," she sobbed, "I don't see how you can be so unreasonable. I've simply got to do all these things, and I like them, anyway. Mother says you always look back to it all as the happlest time of your life, and I'm getting a love of a trousseau—it's worth spending some time on—everyhody says that Very soon I negan to realize acutely that a fashionable wedding inevitably casts its shadow long before. Whenever I wanted Mary now she was busy. And invariably it was something connected with her wedding.

If I asked her to drive, there was the milliner or the dressmaker or the tailor to consult, and there were a variety of lessons to be taken in the draping of her vell. There were showers and luncheons ing some time on-everybody says that

What to Do With Clippings

By MRS. CHRISTINE FREDERICK. THE housewife, just as much as the business man, has a great many things in which she is interested. As she reads over her favorite magazine she sees this article, which is interesting, about some phase of house decoration or furniture. In another magazine she reads about the newest kind of labor savers and household equipment. Her newspaper magazine page gives her some household suggestion or a good recipe. Perhaps she is interested in gardening, child training, or problem plays. The question is, where, oh, where, shall she put her clippings?

The business man has long ago answered this questions by developing various kinds of filing schemes in which to keep all the information which he desires to turn to at any time. Now, the average woman takes her clippings and stuffs them loosely into a book, or possibly pastes them there, or, as some tell me, they keep special small envela great many things in they keep spe-cial small envel-opes into which they place the clippings in which they are interested. interested.

None of these methods is best because in time book sets filled up, and if there is any need to take out a clipping, it is difficult to do so. Also, no book allows for any definite classification or systematizing the information in the clipping.

or systematizing the information in the clipping.

The very best, and at the same time the simplest, arrangement is to use the large, so-called "filing envelopes," which are seen in offices, libraries, and other places where information is catalogued or filed. These envelopes come in various sizes, the most usable of which is $212. These envelopes are made of $212.

These envelopes come in various sizes, the most usable of which is 3x12. These envelopes are made of heavy manila paper, and fastened either with a snap or string. They cost from 3 to 6 cents apiece, depending on the quantity in which they are bought. They can be secured at any stationer's, and even some of the department stores.

Now, how to use them. Supposing a dozen envelopes are bought, together with a few labels. Now let the housewife decide what are the subjects in which she is most interested and on which she wants to file information. Perhaps they will be such groups as Foods and Recipes, Interior Decoration, Child Hygiene, Club Programs, House Hints, etc. Write each name on a separate label, paste it in the upper left-hand corner of the envelope; then all the envelopes can be placed upright in a large drawer or bookholder on the drawer or bookholder on the the drawer or bookholder on the the the housekeeper sees an arie in which she is interested, as, aps, canning fruits in summer, clips it, and then, instead of laying and looked aries at a pigeonhole or a kin disorderly fashion, she simplifys it into the envelope called ods;" or, if she sees an article Mme. Montessori's methods, she sit and places it in the file called d and Child Hyzlene. She may a dozen envelopes or she may several dozen depending upon breadth of her interests. But in case, with such envelopes, she be able to locate at once a delipice of information. And how h time we women often waste maging, searching and looking up a little clipping or hint that we of find when we want it! A simplify, 1914, by Mrs. Christine Frederick.)

In the first teeth not only functionally and admage to the permanent teeth, but they mar beauty, cause point the hair falling out. For dandrif try this: Resorcin. By grains; sulphur, 39 grains, and red vassing place for some stray bacillus of tuberculosis, joint tever, diphtheria or a worse malady.

The wise modern mother must sacrifice her own duties, her own pleasure and even a child's schooling, if need be, to have his teeth properly filed and looked after.

If general knowledge kept pace with the first teeth not only your scalp well with the finger tips to pour scalp will with the finger tips to prevent the hair falling out.

For dandrif try this: Resorcin. By grains; sulphur, 39 grains, sulphur, 39 grains, sulphur, 39 grains, sulphur, 39 grains; sulph desk.

When the housekeeper sees an article in which she is interested, as, perhaps, canning fruits in summer, she clips it, and then, instead of laying, it away in a pigeonhole or a book in disorderly fashion, she simply slips it into the envelope called "Foods;" or, if she sees an article on Mme. Montessori's methods, she clips it and places it in the file called Child and Child Hyglene. She may use a dozen envelopes or she may use several dozen, depending upon the breadth of her interests. But in any case, with such envelopes, she the breadth of her interests. But in any case, with such envelopes, she will be able to locate at once a desired piece of information. And how much time we women often waste rummaging, searching and looking up just a little clipping or hint that we cannot find when we want it! A simple filing system will save time, effort, and temper.

Secrets of Health and Happiness

How Neglect of First Teeth

By Dr. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

That's the worst yet."

It is much the same with Johnny's first teeth. First it's one thing and then it's another, and many mothers, despite the free dental clinics, still lay their neglect of child's milk teeth to their own poverty.

bout "clean your teeth" or "stop in at the dentist." Neglect of a child's first teeth is rethe first teeth act as arches to resist the inward pressure of the lips and to maintain cosmetic symmetry should make their importance mean assiduous attention from earliest infancy onward. If the first teeth are correctly safe-

If the first teeth are correctly safeguarded, the permanent and second teeth slip snugly into the grooves of the first. They are thus retained in proper place, interlocked by their cusps.
Cusps are the projections of the crown of a tooth.

Spaces should not be allowed between the first teeth. If so, where the points of contact are lost pressure of the lips crowd the teeth. This causes deformity of the second set.

The first teeth should, if possible, never be drawn out. When this occurs the second teeth have to force their way through the toughened, scar tissue of the gums.

If the first teeth decay, especially the pulp, germs enter and infect, them, abcesses form, and serious mischief ensues in the gums. When this misdemeanor occurs, the roots of the first teeth fall to be absorbed, and become obstructions to the second ones. It causes the latter to become crooked.

The economic fallacy that-"it's no use to spend money to fill the first, because they have, to come out soon anyway," is one of those corrupting influences which saps the very vitals of civilization.

Cavities in the first teeth not only work ultimate damage to the perma-

Causes Ills in Later Life

A. B., M. A., M. D. (Johns Hopkins).

OHNNY returned to school with this note from his mother "Dear Teacher: You keep tellin' my boy to breathe with his palate. Maybe rich children has ot palates, but how about when there father only makes $2 a day and has got six children to keep? First its one thing, then its another, and now its palates.

Like Topsy, most children are allowed to "just grow up" without regard to the condition of their teeth. Although they are commanded to "wash their faces." 'don't dare to sit at the table with dirty hands" and "It's about time you practiced your music lesson," never a sponsible for more ills of adult life than is usually realized. The fact that

Answers to Health Questions

E. C.-My dentist, who is a prof and recognized all over the world, says ceding gums are "uric acid" from the stomach and the blood, to which he says I am subject. 2. Why, if this is true, does the uric acid attack only two fect has milk of magnesia on this?

thralled, as are most dentists, in the ancient delusion of "uric acid" non-sense. Those deposits are not "uric 2 Slight defects in teeth, gu tissues generally cause food, bacteris, and debris to collect in the sore spots, and a mixture of salts, acids, and coagulated albumen gather there. 3 Milk of magnesia is a mechanical and a chemical cleaner.

K. G. H.—What can I do for hair tail-ing out, get rid of dandruff, and stop intense itching?

Use the electric brush and massage your scalp well with the finger tips to prevent the hair falling out.

For dandruff try this: Resorcin, 19 grains; sulphur, 39 grains, and red vasciline, with any pleasant scent, one ounce.

Massage this well into your scalp on alternate nights.

All Superfluous Hair

dvice by a Skin Specialist.

best means I have ever found that never fails to remove all signs of disfiguring growths of hair on the face, neck, arms, or hands is a simple, inexpensive preparation called Mrs. Osgood's Wonder. It is absolutely harmless, cannot injure the skin or complexion, and in a surprisingly ery package. Let me caution you, how-ever, not to apply this treatment except where total destruction of hair is de-

How to Eradicate Three Minute Journeys WHERE FARMERS WORK TO MUSIC

Children Cry for Fletcher's .

The Kind You Have Always Bought has borne the signahealth of Children-Experience against Experiment. What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Pare goric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It destroys Worms and allays Feverishness. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic, all Teething Trou-bles and Diarrhea. It regulates the Stomach and Bowels, assimilates the Food, giving healthy and natural sleep.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of

For Over 30 Years

The Children's Panacea-The Mother's Friend.

ture of Chas. H. Fletcher, and has been made under his personal supervision for over 30 years. Allow no one to deceive you in this. Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but experiments, and endanger the

By Temple Manning N Central Soudan, which lies in the quota of workers. It is very curious to heart of Central Africa, I found watch them as they stroll around. unexpected hospitality among the Here they will stop and solemnly sa-Gwari. These strange black men lute the workers for their energy, and have a high degree of civilization, par- across the field they will again come to ticularly in farming pursuits. They a halt and rebuke some other worker have a number of towns in which one for his slackness, may see peculiar customs still current, All work that is of any importance is carried on to the accompaniment of are to be found in the fields, smoking make up for lost time.

but it is on the farms just outside of der the trees smoking their pipes, while these towns that I found the greatest other headmen of equal rank, but of to greater labors. But let a wart hog be flushed in the nearby woods and music. The headsmen go out to the fields with the workers and stand around, dressed in monkey or goat skins, playing the fife or a drum. Sometimes, on state occasions, there will be an entire native band made up of fifes, drums, pipes, and native violins.

Whenever there is any work being carried on, the big men of the village are to be found in the fields, smoking their sphere with the hog has been dispatched, they all hurry back to their work and the head hurry back to their work and the harder to make up for lost time.

their pipes, each having brought his Copyright, Newspaper Feature Service.

As soon as women of today learn that permanent removal of ugly, repulsive hair growths can only be gained by reaching the hair root, and not by using common, worthless depilatories such as burning pastes, powders, evil-smell-ing liquids, etc., the better it will be for their happiness and safety. Nor can the electric needle be depended upon to give satisfactory results without danger of horrible scars or facial paralysis. The

The old men are sure to be found unless age, are beating their drums to large number of cases has succeeded in killing the hair down to the very roots, cheer their less lucky compatriots on source of all growth. When the roots are killed no more hair can grow. You can get Mrs. Osgood's Wonder from O'Donnell's Drug Store or any up-to-date druggist or department store. Signed Money Back guarantee with every perkage. Let me cantifon you have

Furniture For Their

sired .- Advt.

We offer young people very special inducements to come to us for the furnishings of their first home of married life.

First Home

Our goods are reliable; our prices are reasonable; and we will sell them more for the same payments, or the same amount for smaller payments than any firm in Washington.

Peter Grogan AND SONS CO.

Our Credit Accommodation

817 to 823 Seventh Street